

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

First and foremost, I sincerely thank my Ph.D. guide, “Prof. Janardan Prasad Singh”, who has not only taught me advanced subjects like “quantum field theory and quantum chromodynamics” but also helped me extensively during my whole Ph.D. programme. His wisdom and sincerity towards the research work inspired me to improve myself in many ways. His company was worth having!

I express my thankfulness to all the members of the Department of Physics, for availing all the departmental facilities during my Ph. D. course.

I sincerely thank my soulmate “Vijay” and members of my family: Mandakini, Dinesh, Manjula, Kokila, Kanti, Aastha, and Dharmik, who have made me believe that I am not alone in any situation of life, rather I have an entire army of good and loving people!

Life is “boring” without “interesting” friends. My deepest thanks to dear “Nidhi” who is there for me whenever I need any kind of help. I am extremely grateful to “Nakul” without whom my latex files would not be there in my folders, but would only be in my dreams! My special thanks to my dear friend “Sitara”, whose company is always enjoyable and refreshing! I truly thank “Dr. Kavita”, who is a “person of substance”, for helping me whenever I felt a need. I would like to thank “Mahhatta” for showing her love and affection towards me all the time. She is a “wonderful human being”! I thank my seniors “Sudhanava” and “Aditya” for supporting me in the times of need. I also thank all the research scholars of physics department for making my workplace very comfortable for research.

I would also like to thank all the teachers, especially the teachers of nuclear physics, who have collectively played a role in motivating me to pursue research in particle physics when I was a post-graduate student in the physics department.

I deeply thank UGC for providing me financial assistance through UGC BSR fellowship scheme.

I believe that “an opportunity to progress in life is the biggest gift” of god to us. I thank the almighty God for giving me this opportunity to enhance my mind and soul by pursuing higher education.

Finally, I sincerely acknowledge all my well-wishers who directly or indirectly helped me during the course of this work.
