

Usefulness of the Study

1. Findings of the study could make parents aware of specific features and adaptations in garments that could be provided in clothes for their handicapped children to make them independent in their dressing.
2. Suitable features and adaptations found in the study could be used to alter or modify existing clothing for greater independence and self-help.
3. The findings of this study could be utilized by the institutions, schools and hospitals for the handicapped to provide clothes or uniforms with features suitable to specific disability for comfort and self-help.