

Acknowledgement

This research would not have been a reality without the constant support from the world's best army, Indian Army. I feel immense gratitude towards a number of individuals who have been an encouraging support in my journey. They have helped me in understanding military life better, helped to understand the process of getting permissions, for collecting data, ensured a safe and healthy stay, most of the times helped me in commutation, they have helped me in chasing my dreams in an ethically correct manner. I am forever indebted to each one of you.

The ranks are as known in 2016.

Have been blessed to be doing research on a population who was enthusiastic to be part of a research and felt it is happening for the first time. They were candid in sharing their life stories with me and contributed to my research. Eternally thankful to each one who has been part of the research.

Academically, I cannot fathom to have done my research without these individuals, their knowledge and expertise and the finesse in which they pass down their wisdom is uncanny. I really appreciate the patience and perfectionism in my guide Prof. Shagufa Kapadia who always pushed me to stretch my boundaries. Dr. Rashmin Sompura for making me trust my capabilities and helping me achieve the humongous task I had taken in my hand. Dr. Mario Xavier, who when he was in this mortal world encouraged me to take up research and higher studies. Sharon Writer, my teacher and now a friend, constantly motivated me for having ‘never say die’ attitude. Dr. Apurva Kumar Pandya, a mentor, a friend, an angel, he guided me through my entire length and breadth of research and inspired me to be a better researcher.

My friends who supported me in tiniest of things like booking my tickets to helping me get in touch with the concerned authorities to get permissions. Sameena Manasawala, (couldn’t have done it without her) who reminded me to go on, as the ultimate goal of taking up this research is bigger than minor setbacks; Dr. Minal Patel, reviewing my work to be up to standards; Veena Panjwani, reminding me of all submissions; Aditi Tembe-Naik, for making me aware about all the nitty gritty of fauj; Riddhi Mehta, for helping me with data entry.

I cannot thank enough to my family who has been my pillar of strength (which is an understatement) throughout my research and otherwise. My father, Mr. Tulsidas Thakordas Lakhani, who reminded me day in and out that I need to work hard on my PhD as it is going to benefit such an honourable sector, my mother, Mrs. Sangeeta Tulsidas Lakhani, who let me work even though she was tired of managing everything alone, my sister, Anjali Lakhani, who was there to help in any manner that was required throughout, and my brother, Jayant Lakhani, the biggest critic in my life kept me on my toes to deliver the best. Latest addition to my life, my partner for this life Vishal Agarwala, he too helped and persisted me to follow my dream research and helped me remain focussed.

I thank you all from the bottom of my heart.
