

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

A research study of this type could not have been completed without the inspiration, guidance, encouragement and help of several people at different stages. It is therefore, a fitness of things that I may take this opportunity to express my sentiments and heartfelt gratitude to those who have contributed in the completion of this study.

I am indebted to my guide, Professor (Mrs.) Arti U. Nanavati, who not only initiated me in the subject but also gave guidance, candid comments and constructive criticisms. She supervised my work, examining, correcting and improving the drafts of manuscripts. I owe immensely to her graciousness and sense of meticulous perfection.

During the course of this study, I had the opportunity to benefit from the suggestions, comments and encouragement of Professor Maya Shah, Head, Dept. of Economics, and Professor V. N. Kothari, retired Professor of Economics. My thanks are also due to Professor L. A. Rede, Professor of Economics, for her valuable suggestions on the measurement of profitability. I also had the opportunity to discuss with Dr. P. R. Joshi and Dr. A. S. Rao.

Without the support of some of my colleagues in the Faculty of Commerce, M. S. University of Baroda, this work would have been very difficult. My foremost debt and thanks are due to Prof. S. K. Singh, Head, Dept. of Business Economics and Dean, Faculty of Commerce for his constant encouragement and caring attitude towards the completion of this work. I would also like to express my gratitude to Dr. Samir Joshi and Dr. D. N. Nayak, for their valuable suggestions and comments. Dr. Nayak took the pains of going through the entire manuscript. My thanks are also due to Dr. S. Bansal and Dr. E. G. Macwan with whom I had many fruitful discussions on the present study.

I would like to express my special note of thanks to Dr. Arup Mitra, Institute of Economic Growth, for being very receptive whenever I requested him for a response to my research pursuits. Despite erratic demands on his time, he had been very accommodating. I am also thankful to Dr. Rinki Sarkar, Delhi School of Economics, for her guidance in cost function analysis. I am grateful to Mr. K. Lal, Institute of Economic Growth, who guided me in the operation of LIMDEP software for various econometric analyses.

I am grateful to the following institutions: a) Institute of Economic Growth, Delhi b) Delhi School of Economics, c) Planning Commission, New Delhi d) Indian Airlines Head Office, New Delhi e) Asian Institute of Transport Development, New Delhi f) IIM, Ahmedabad and, f) Hansa Mehta Library, Baroda, for providing me the necessary informations

My friend, Mr. Samir Rai and his family were very kind to offer ready access to their computer facility during the initial phase of the research work. I am short of words to express my gratefulness to them. I am also thankful to my friends Mr. Akash Kumra, Dr. Saji Thomas and Mr. Manos Barua. who offered their assistance in various ways.

I would also take the opportunity to express my gratitude to my Uncle Professor S. R. Hashim, former Member Planning Commission for his continuous encouragement and support. I express my gratitude to my parents who provided me the opportunity to reach to the level of doing Ph.D. My thanks are also due to my in-laws who continuously provided encouragement to me.

Last but not the least, I express my sincere thanks to my wife, Huma who was patient, encouraging and caring and to our little daughter, Kashish, who had to bear the brunt of my long absence and suffer without complaining in the course of this study.
