

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I gratefully acknowledge the sustained advice received from Prof. P.M. Modi, Director, Water Resources Engineering and Management Institute, Samiala. I am indebted to him for his invaluable affectionate guidance, constant inspiration, constructive suggestions and continuous encouragement at every stage, inspite of his extremely busy schedule. The thesis is the outcome of unceasing endeavour and continuous interaction with him. It is my privilage to hence done the work under him. Grateful acknowlegements are due to Prof. G.S.Parthsarthy, Deputy Director and Shri D.T.Shete, Reader of WREMI for many valuable suggetions and cordial dealings during the research. I thank entire Faculty and staff of Water Resources Engineering and Management Institute, Samiala for showing extreme consideration to me during the research work. I am also thankful to Dean, Faculty Of Technology and Engineering for allowing me to pursue this advanced study.

My thanks are also due to Dr.C.D.Thatte Ex.Secretary, Minisrtry of Water Resources Department, Government of India who inspired me to undertake this task. I also wish to take this opportunity of thanking Water Resources Department, Government of Gujarat for giving opportunity for this research work.

The contributions of Agricultural College Dantiwada, Anand, Rajkot and Junagadh in supplying necessary data have been phenomenal. I am thankful to entire Agriculture Faculty.

A special mention must be made of the role played by Shri Dipak.K.More, shri Vijay K. Shah and Shri Suresh S. Yatgiri in programming and analysis on computer. The thesis is based on computer analysis to a very large extent. Without their cooperation in data compilation and analysis a study of this type would not have been possible. I take this opportunity to thank shri More, shri Shah and shri Yatgiri for their painstaking help.

Thanks are also due to entire staff of Narmada Hydraulic Division, GERI for assistance in data analysis, data entry and help during this research. My thanks are also due to staff members of VIC for their help during reporting.

I wish to express my gratitudes to all authors, Institutions whose articles, papers and reports have been referred for preparation of this thesis.

At the lieu, I must record deep gratitude towards my family members especially to my parents, wife and children for their kind and most essential encouragement to this humble achievement.

Quile
(V.M.Yagnik)