

TABLE OF CONTENTS

	PAGE
Acknowledgement_ 	i
Table of Contents 	ii
List of Tables 	vi
List of Figures 	viii
List of Appendices 	ix
CHAPTER I : INTRODUCTION	1-33
1.0 Introduction
1.1 Radio as a Medium of Instruction
1.2 School Broadcasts Through Radio ..
1.3 School Broadcasts and A.I.R., Cuttack
1.3.1 Production of Programmes
1.3.2 Listening in the Schools
1.4 Some Basic Issues
1.5 Need for Research
1.6 Researches Done on School Broadcasts
1.7 The Present Study
1.7.1 Objectives of the Study
1.7.2 The Hypothesis
1.7.3 Limitations of the Study
References
CHAPTER II : STUDY OF THE TRANSMITTING END	34-90
2.0 Introduction
2.1 Instrumentation
2.2 Sample
2.3 Collection of Data - -
2.4 Analysis and Interpretation
2.4.1 Instructional Objectives of School Broadcast Programmes
2.4.2 Number of Programmes Broadcast
2.4.3 Content Coverage
2.4.4 Script Writing
2.4.5 Quality of the Programmes
References

	PAGE
CHAPTER III : STUDY OF THE RECEIVING END	91-133
3.0 Introduction
3.1 Instrumentation
3.2 Sample
3.3 Collection of Data
3.4 Analysis and Interpretation
3.4.1 School Broadcast Programmes and the Schools in General
3.4.2 Facilities Available and the Arrangements made for Reception of Programme in School Broadcast User Schools
3.4.3 Use of School Broadcast Programmes in Classroom Situations
3.4.4 Reactions of Students Towards School Broadcast Programmes
References
CHAPTER IV : DEVELOPMENT OF STRATEGIES	134-173
4.0 Introduction
4.1 On Instructional Strategy
4.2 Instructional Strategy for the Present Study
4.2.1 Pre-broadcast Activities
4.2.2 Activities During the Broadcast
4.2.3 Post-broadcast Activities
4.3 Development of Instructional Strategies
4.3.1 Procedure of Development
4.3.1.1 Preparation of Content Sequence
4.3.1.2 Formulation of Terminal Behaviours
4.3.1.3 Development of Criterion Test Items
4.3.1.4 Development of the Learning Experiences
(a) Development of Instructional Materials (Slides, Workbooks)
(b) Development of Instructional Activities
(c) Integration of Instructional Materials and Instructional Activities with School Broadcast Programme

4.4	Tryout of the Strategies
4.4.1	The Tryout
4.4.2	Analysis of Results
4.4.3	Modification of the Strategies
	References
CHAPTER V : EXPERIMENTAL VALIDATION OF THE STRATEGIES		174-262
5.0	Introduction
5.1	Effectiveness of the Strategies
5.1.1	The Hypothesis
5.1.2	Experimentation
5.1.2.1	Design
5.1.2.2	Sample
5.1.2.3	Treatments
5.1.2.4	Tools
5.1.2.5	Procedure for Experimentation
5.1.2.6	The Experiment
5.1.2.7	Analysis and Interpretation
5.1.2.7.1	Means, Standard Deviations and Percentiles
5.1.2.7.2	Analysis of Variance
5.1.2.7.3	Percentage Increase of Means
5.2	Reactions of Students Towards the Strategies
5.2.1	Instrumentation
5.2.2	Sample
5.2.3	Collection of Data
5.2.4	Analysis and Interpretation
5.3	Reactions of the Teachers
5.3.1	Instrumentation and Sampling
5.3.2	Collection of Data
5.3.3	Analysis and Interpretation
	References

	PAGE
CHAPTER VI : STUDY OF THE FEASIBILITY OF THE STRATEGIES	263-277
6.0 Introduction
6.1 Instrumentation
6.2 Sample
6.3 Collection of Data
6.4 Analysis and Interpretation
6.4.1 Study of Time
6.4.2 Study of the Schedule
6.4.3 Study of the Cost Involved
References
CHAPTER VII : SUMMARY, CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS	278-311
7.0 Introduction
7.1 Radio as a Medium of Instruction
7.2 School Broadcasts Through Radio
7.3 School Broadcasts and A.I.R. Cuttack
7.4 Some Basic Issues
7.5 Need for Research
7.6 Researches Done on School Broadcasts
7.7 The Present Study
7.8 Conclusions
7.9 Suggestions for Improvement
7.10 Suggestions for Further Research
BIBLIOGRAPHY	312-316
APPENDICES I to XI	317-381