

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The study I undertook on the Economic Aspects of Primary Education in Tamil Nadu has been a most fascinating one and I owe a deep debt of gratitude to many who stood by me and helped me with ideas, suggestions, data and more than anything else with constructive criticism as well.

I extend my sincere thanks to the Economists, Educationists and various writers in this enchanting field of Economics of Education whose primary studies have been of great interest to me, as source material from which I drew inspiration to go ahead with my own investigations.

Among the many leaders in the field, I am especially grateful to Dr. Malcolm S. Adiseshiah, Vice-Chancellor of Madras University, Prof. M. V. Mathur, Director, The National Staff College, New Delhi and Shri J. P. Naik, Member-Secretary, Indian Council of Social Science Research (ICSSR), New Delhi for their most valuable suggestions.

I express my grateful thanks to my various colleagues who are Heads of Sister Departments and also to the Public and Private Sector Managers whom I contacted, for their invaluable help in allowing me to carry out fresh studies in their fields.

I will be failing in my duty, if I do not record how indebted I am, to my illustrious guide and adviser, Dr. V. N. Kothari (Head of the Department of Economics, The M. S. University of Baroda) whose sincere guidance and effective and erudite direction were greatly responsible for my completing this study in record time.
