

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

In the pursuance of this research work, I have benefited from many teachers, friends as well as family members to whom I am highly indebted.

First of all, I wish to thank the Department of Economics for motivating me to pursue a Ph.D. degree. However, self motivation, without proper guidance cannot help one to proceed quickly in an endeavor. I therefore, take pleasure in acknowledging the debt I owe my guide Dr. A. S. Rao, for not only accepting me as a student but for his constant support and encouragement. Despite, my inability to deliver the goods in time, he patiently went through my drafts and his feedback and efforts has seen the fruition of this task. His knowledge of the subject matter and reasoned arguments has enriched me academically and provided me with the confidence to undertake this study.

I express my gratitude to Prof. B. S. Kantawala, Head, Department of Economics for encouraging me to pursue my Ph.D. degree at Baroda.

The Department has provided a congenial, stimulating and intellectual environment. It is because of the presence of caring and excellent faculty, who has generously shared their expertise that motivated me to pursue my further studies at Baroda.

I am also grateful to B.C Patel for his encouragement and support in the data analysis of my work.

I take this opportunity to thank Prof. R. J. Shah, Dean, Faculty of Arts for constantly pushing me to complete the task within the time frame.

I thank the The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda for providing me with the fellowship and thus assisting me financially.

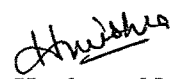

The long period of stay at the hostel campus has bestowed me with many friends and well wishers. It is not possible to record my indebtedness to them individually. I thank all my friends in the Department especially Shikha Ojha and William, S. Bandari, Romesh, Bishnu, Dr. Khemraj, Deepak Dash, Anand Bhatt, Rajesh and many more in the hostel campus.

I am at loss of words to express my regards and gratitude to Abira Mitra, my parents, brothers Bramhanand and Parmanand for their persistent support and help. They have, since long been patiently waiting for accomplishment of this task.

Finally I thank God for showering his blessings on me.
