

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS.

This study was initiated ~~under~~ the suggestion and carried out, for some time, under the guidance of Dr. D. K. Shukla. His untimely death in December, 1969 unfortunately prevented me from having fuller benefit of his expertise in the field of monetary economics. His incisive attitude and sweet temper have however remained sources of inspiration with me.

I express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. V. N. Kothari who has helped me in numerous ways in the preparation of this work.

I am also grateful to Professor C. N. Vakil who enthused me to complete the work and goaded me into action.

Thanks are due to Principal A. R. Desai for providing both encouragement in my work and a free access to the library of Sir K. P. College of Commerce.

I am also thankful to Dr. B. V. Mehta for suggesting stylistic improvements and holding discussion with me on more than one occasion.

My greatest debt is perhaps to my wife who despite the pressures and hardships inflicted on the household continued to provide inspiration, encouragement and - assistance in my work.

South Gujarat University,
S u r a t.

November, 1971.

M. N. Raval