

I deeply thank and appreciate University Grants Commission and Government of India, for extending financial support for my Ph.D. According to my statistics, the fellowship awarded to each JRF is equivalent to total expenses incurred in running a primary school in a small village of India, with one teacher, one peon and costs on mid-day meals. With a population of over 1.2billion, of which 70% reside in over 5.5lakh villages, Government of India has a Herculean task of imparting primary education in rural India. The Government could have imparted primary education to a small village somewhere in interior India educating atleast 50 village kids, but supported my higher education. It is an obligation which I can never repay but I am committed to contribute to the nation's progress to the best of my abilities. I dedicate my thesis symbolically to "those 50 village kids" and pledge to meet Nation's expectations from its youth, to the best of my abilities.

*Dedicated to
'Those 50 village kids'*
