

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my guide Dr. Shyama Rajaram, for her continuous encouragement, suggestions, admonishments and friendship, without which, this thesis could not have seen the light of day. She took pain in going through all my reports and corrected them with attention and care. Her guidance is reflected in every paragraph of this thesis, as they are fine tuned by her. She has really obliged me by the incomparable patience and profound kindness offered by her during this Doctoral Research. During my interaction, I could see a true colour of a teacher in her.

I would also like to thank the other teachers of the department, Dr. Sanghmitra Pradhan and Ms. Bhakti Gala for their warm support.

My heartfelt thanks to Mr. Rajnikant Marfatia, Chairman of Sarvajanic Education Society and Mr. Manoj Joshi, I/C Director of the Institute for the constant motivation and support. My colleagues at BRCM College were always proved to be of great moral support and help.

I convey my sincere thanks to the twenty one respondents for their generous co-operation and help in providing valuable information during my study in spite of their busy schedule. Further, I thank the other 71 respondents for filling up the questionnaire during the workshop which was organized for librarians held at my institute.

I owe very special thanks to MANLIBNET Vice President, Dr. Anil Kumar and General Secretary, Mr. Akhtar Parvez for being the Co-organisers of the above said workshop. Through this workshop I could gather the data related to the small college libraries which were very important for my study.

I take this opportunity to put on record the help of my students, especially Mr. Bhagirath Baria for helping me in collecting data from the participants during the workshop.

My professional friends Ms. Jyoti Bhatt, Ms. Ranjita Dash, Dr. Umesh Patel always proved to be of great moral support and help.

I would specially thank my friends Dr.Vipul Vyas and Ms. Vaishali Anand for providing unconditional support, encouragement, motivation and help throughout my research work. They were always there in difficult situations and kept me motivated.

This study would not have taken place without the blessings and moral support of my parents, brother and sister-in-law. I find no words to articulate their contributions in my professional endeavours.

I am grateful to my husband, who always inspired and supported me for higher studies.

Last but not the least my very special thanks to my son, Advait. He was always there with me during the up and down moments of my research work. He is a big critique and great friend of mine. I have always seen the shine in his eyes at my professional achievements. This shine keeps me motivating to achieve further professional developments.

Above all, the pervading blessings and shower of love of my spiritual guide are the imperceptible drive behind me.

Ms. Meeta Rathod
