

LIST OF FIGURES

Figure No.	Page No.
Figure 4.1: Tools from Bogibori	81
Figure 4.2: Rim sherds and decorated body sherds from bogibori	82
Figure 4.3: Megalithic remains at site Marakdola (MKD)	84
Figure 4.4: Section exposing pottery at site Marakdola (MKD)	84
Figure 4.5: Marakdola (MKD) pottery (1)	85
Figure 4.6: Marakdola (MKD) pottery (2)	86
Figure 4.7: Marakdola (MKD) pottery	87
Figure 4.8: Cord and Paddle impressed pottery from Marakdola (MKD)	90
Figure 4.9: Complete Pot and Spouts from Marakdola (MKD) (Collection from Dibrugarh University Anthropology department)	91
Figure 4.10: Guwahati (GHY) pottery	93
Figure 4.11: Dish-on-stand from Ambari excavation	96
Figure 4.12: Terracotta plaque with Sunga-Kushana features and Stamped/Impressed pottery, Ambari	96
Figure 4.13: Ganapati (GNP) pottery	98
Figure 4.14: Ganapati (GNP) pottery	99
Figure 4.15: Stone tools from Bambooti (Gauhati University Anthropology Department)	111

Museum collection)
Figure 4.16: Abradars from Bambooti (Gauhati University Anthropology Department Museum Collection)	111
Figure 4.17: The abrasion marks on the surface of Abradars	112
Figure 4.18: Stone tools from Damra (Gauhati University Anthropology Department Museum Collection)	112
Figure 4.19: Stone tools and Abradars from Damra (Gauhati University Anthropology Department Museum Collection)	113
Figure 4.20: Mornoi (MRN) pottery	115
Figure 4.21: Mornoi (MRN) pottery	116
Figure 4.22: Stone Tools from Dibru Valley (A collection from Dibrugarh University Anthropology Department)	124
Figure 4.23: Karbi Langpi River: View from Moring Morong hill	125
Figure 4.24: Slopes of hill at Bichikkri where Jhum is cultivated	127
Figure 4.25: Kekang (KKA) Adong pottery	129
Figure 4.26: Kekang (KKA) Adong pottery (1)	130
Figure 4.27: Kekang (KKA) Adong pottery	131
Figure 4.28: Kekang-Adong (KKA) pottery (2)	132
Figure 4.29: Pottery drawing and the diagnostic sherds from	139

Langmet (LGT)
Figure 4.30: Stone tools from Langmet (LGT)	141
Figure 4.31: Neoliths from Daojali Hading (Guwahati University anthropology Deptt. Museum collection)	146
Figure 4.32: Cord-impressed sherds from Daojali-hading (A collection from Gauhati University Anthropology Department)	148
Figure 4.33: Langting River	150
Figure 4.34: Stone tools from Mailu	152
Figure 4.35: Stone jars from Chaikam	153
Figure 4.36: Monolithic stone jars from Bolosan	155
Figure 5.1: Distribution of Dimasa tribe in Mailu village, North Cachar Hills and Dimasa community living in the hill slopes at present	224
Figure 5.2: Dimasa women carrying bamboo vessel for booming wooden sticks, vegetables from jhum field and hills.	225
Figure 5.3: Find spot of stone tools in Mailu village by the villagers	226
Figure 5.4: Gun Used for game hunting	227
Figure 5.5: Semkhor village and a traditional hut	230
Figure 5.6: The sacrificial stone (a), the decorated buffalo horn (b), the sacrificial ground (c)	230

Figure 5.7: Traditional house exterior (a), A male hunter with equipments (b), a buffalo horn as entrance decoration in house interior part (c), different skeletons of animals on side wall of house interior (d)	232
Figure No 5.8: Three Zemi-Naga women in three different household works; milling process of rice in traditional wooden tool (a), weaving of traditional dresses for women (b), preparing food in a traditional kitchen where pork's are smoked (c)	233
Figure 5.9: The local beer storing and pouring vessal	233
Figure 5.10: The stone jars (a), the present burial stone (b), the sitting platform (c), the memorial stone platform in front of house (d)	235
Figure 6.1: Hoabinhian tool assemblages from Moh-Khiew Cave, Thailand; Chopping tools, Bifacially retouched block and Bifaces from Moh-Khiew	258