

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

At the outset, I wish to put on record my deep indebtedness to Prof (Dr) M V. Asnani for her invaluable suggestions, encouragement all the time and effort she put in to guide me throughout the conduct of this study.

I express my sincere thanks to Prof. A.V Ramachandran, Department Head, for providing me the necessary facilities and help whenever required. I am equally indebted and would like to express my gratitude to Prof. Bonny Pilo for providing me the opportunity in pursuing my research.

I acknowledge my heartfelt gratitude to my friend Dr Aeshita Mukherjee for the endless hours she has unstintingly devoted, in and off the field, to help me learn and guide me through my research

I am grateful to Dr. George Archibald, Director, International Crane Foundation, USA and Dr. P. Mineau, Section Head, Canadian Wildlife Services, for providing me all the supportive literature I requested for

I also extend my sincere thanks to Dr. D. J. Patel and Dr B M Parasharya, Gujarat Agricultural University for their critical guidance, their valuable time and patience, and helping me in structuring the statistical part of the study. Sincere thanks are also to the teaching and non-teaching staffs of our department for their timely help.

It would be just unfair if the pivot of the thesis, the many farmers of Kheda district, who are too numerous to name individually, but are of immense importance to the success of my work

I owe my deep gratitude to my beloved parents for their silent blessings. It would have never been possible to reach this goal without their sacrifice and the constant inspiration.
