

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Undertaking this Ph.D. academic research has been truly a life-changing experience, during this period I got the opportunity to meet people of different caliber and capabilities. It would not have been possible to complete this research without their support.

I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to my mentor Dr. Jayram Poduval, without his regular guidance, support, and encouragement this research would not have been possible. His longer incomparable experience of academic research directed me toward a deep understanding of my research orientation. I am grateful to Dr. Rita Soda for her energetic and effective topic discussions. My special gratitude to the teaching and non-teaching staff of the Department of Art History and Aesthetics for their educative interactions from which a lot has been learned.

The noble support of the Director of Rajasthani Shodh Sansthan, Dr. Vikram Singh Bhati has been proved a buttress for the research execution. Reading the archival sources and extracting meaning was a very complex and passionate process for me, but his valuable research experience helped in understanding the small details of the vernacular script.

I would also like to express my gratitude to the trustees of Mehrangarh Museum Trust for their always openhearted approach to researchers. I am very thankful to late Karni Singh Jasol for all possible permissions for the site investigations, the staff of Maharaja Mansingh Pustak Prakash and Research Center has been very supportive, especially Dr. Mahendra Singh Tanwar. Mr. Ashok Mankad is tremendous in traditional knowledge of architectural techniques and building materials, he was very supportive, a big thanks to him. Mr. Karmaveer Singh, Mr. Kirtiman Sharma, Abhiraj, Bhargav, Deelip, Jay, Urja, Raj and Umang were the helping hands.

My attitude of optimistic energy for a worthwhile and productive life, neo-consciousness, and inspiration for better research practice is always rooted in the blessings and teaching of my parents, yes, it is unparalleled. I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my “Gurus,” all the scholars and academicians from whom I have learned a lot. This research period is a compilation of many good learnings and I strongly believe that the experiences and lessons learned during this period will prove a driving force for me towards a better life and in executing good research work in the future.

At last, I would like to express a big thanks to all those who directly and indirectly helped me in learning and kept me motivated during research, but their names are not mentioned here.
