

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is indeed a matter of immense pleasure to express the deep sense of gratitude I feel for everyone who has supported me in various ways in completing this research. Besides opening some new epistemological scopes for me to understand how we impact the natural environment that embraces all of us, this modest research endeavor has made me realize the huge importance of our emotional and professional bonds- which-like the ecological networks-symbiotically tend to cooperate, encourage and thus nourish the foundations of any creative effort.

I heartily thank my research guide Dr. Aditi Vahia for the considerable amount of time she has invested in discussing and evaluating different aspects of this effort. I appreciate her patience and the cooperation she has offered during various phases of this work. I am grateful to her for allowing me the space of time I required to continue my struggle of treading into the difficult areas of this multidisciplinary subject.

My special thanks are due to Professor Hitesh Raviya, Head, Department of English, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, for his invariable support and encouragement without which I would not have been able to complete this project within the stipulated time.

I am grateful to Professor Sudha Pandya, the former Head, Department of English, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, who had kindly guided me as to why and how a research aspirant must attempt to give his best to the area of his/her research.

I thank Professor Krishanan (Dean, Faculty of Arts, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda) and Professor Lajwanti Chatani, (Head, Department of Political Science, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda) for their amiable approach to research scholars- which indeed plays a key role in motivating academic activities in the campus.

For granting permission to work for this course, I thank Sri Pradipbhai Jaiswal, Chairman, Sanskar Education Trust, Director Sri Sandipbhai Patel, and Dr. Shobhnaben Jain, Principal SKUB Samiti Arts & Smt. N.C.Zaveri Commerce College, Pipaliya. I also thank all my colleagues for showing genuine willingness to offer cooperation in this effort.

I am also happy to acknowledge the academic support I have received from Professor Dilip Bharad, Head, Department of English, The Maharaja Krishnakumarsinhji Bhavnagar University, Bhavnagar.

I would also like to put on record my thanks to Professor Amit Dholakiya, Department of Political Science, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, for his valuable guidance and suggestions in this endeavour.

I express my gratitude to my M.Phil. guide Professor M.F. Salat, whose advice and affection have always encouraged me to continue to improve upon my modes of academic writing.

I also thank Sri Dhruv Bhatt, the author of the select works I have studied here, who kindly agreed to hold an informal discussion with me on some aspects of his works.

While I was drafting my PhD proposal, all the learned professors of the department of English, The Maharaja Sayajirao University, whole heartedly offered their valuable suggestions as well as books for this research. Since Dhruv Bhatt writes originally in Gujarati, whenever I turned to the scholarly faculties of the department of Gujarati, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, for their guidance and material, they have always offered all possible help in most amiable way. I thank all of them from the bottom of my heart.

I am indebted to Professor Piyush Joshi who had first introduced me to the concept of ‘ecocriticism’ in an informal chat I had with him a few years back. What enhanced my sense of reverence for this scholar was his selfless tenacity of explaining some aspects of this subject to me - who was a complete stranger to him at that time, as well as to the subject he was referring to.

My special thanks are also due to Professor Sitanshu Yashaschandra and Sri Mehul Devkala for allowing me to translate their poems and permitting to use them for this research. I must thank Professor Raman Soni and Sri Jayant Meghani for offering his insights and time in modifying my translation of Sri Umashankar Joshi’s poem- which has been incorporated into this thesis.

I cherish the bracing online and offline exchanges I have had with all my lovely friends for their insightful inputs. I must acknowledge that the occasional admonishments I have received from many of them for my indolence have often energized my pursual of this academic attempt.

I extend my thanks to Mr.Vasavada (RFO-Gir Forest) and Dr. Sohel Momin (Veterinary Doctor) for their attempts to clear my doubts about human interactions with specific wild animals in certain situations.

And, finally, I would have never been able to complete this thesis without the exceptional support provided to me by my family.

I treasure my wife Deepan’s unique patience and affectionate cooperation she has offered throughout this academic effort. I am fortunate to have been blessed by the supportive presence of my mother Smt. Saryuben, my father Sri Sanatkumar and my daughter Dirgha in my life.

In The Closing Circle, while explaining one of the basic principles of ecological networks, Barry Commoner had famously said that: “Everything is Connected to Everything Else.” The genuine concern shown for this small effort by my all my relations and friends motivates me to add a word to Commoner’s statement. Yes, I would love to acknowledge that not only every‘thing’ but every‘one’ is also connected to everyone and everything else.

Regards,

Devang Nanavati
