

Acknowledgements

I acknowledge my gratitude to my Guide, Dr. Aarati Mujumdar, for having directed me with personal understanding of my needs as a learner, and for providing an objective academic perspective on my thesis. A great teacher herself, she encouraged me to validate my findings in the light of their actual relevance to the teaching practicum.

I acknowledge my debt to the memory of Professor Jyoti Bhattacharya, late of the Department of English, Calcutta University, who had stated with prescience that I should move away from literature towards ELT. He had advised me in 1993 to write a doctoral thesis based on a research project that would actually help school teachers and students and not just sit on a library shelf, alongside erudite volumes.

I express my gratitude to Professor S.P. Pandya, Head of the Department of English; Professor D. Achar, In-Charge Head of the Department of English; and Professor M.F. Salat, Former Head of the Department of English, of The M.S. University of Baroda, for their guidance, encouragement and support.

I acknowledge my heartfelt gratitude to all the staff of The M.S. University of Baroda, for the high standards of academics they have maintained, thereby encouraging the same in those who are guided by the shining light of their example.

I am grateful to the Librarian and Staff of the Smt. Hansa Mehta Library, The M.S. University of Baroda, for their help during my research.

I acknowledge gratefully, the cooperation, feedback and tremendous support of the Staff, Students and Management of the CBSE schools in Surat, where I conducted my experimental project. At every step, from the pilot study to the final round of data collection, I owe my success to their continual understanding, tolerance of errors and help.

I offer my deepest gratitude to my Parents, and to my Husband and Daughter, without whose willing adjustments to my stressful and erratic schedule, I would never have been able to complete my Ph.D thesis. I must admit that Cujo and Inca, in their own ‘dogmatic’ ways, provided much stress-busting with enforced breaks. Many research problems were thought through while attending to their simple but inflexible needs!
