

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I have no word to express my deep sense of gratitude to my respected guide Prof. Dr. Rajendra I. Nanavati, Director, Oriental Institute (Formerly Head of the Department of Sanskrit, Pali and Prakrit & Principal, Sanskrit Mahāvidyālaya), M.S. University of Baroda for his invaluable guidance and unfailing academic support throughout the course in the preparation of this present research work as a thesis for Ph.D. without which it would not have been possible to complete this work. His veteran scholarship, profound knowledge and very helping nature has always guided me. I, always, have been provided homely atmosphere from his respectable family at every stage in my foreign days of studies. I am highly indebted and grateful to him and his family forever.

I am very thankful to all the Research Officers and staff-members of the Oriental Institute, Baroda, especially to the Librarian Ms. Alka Patel, Research Officers Prof. Wadekar, Dr. P.H. Joshi, Dr. S.Y. Wākankar, Dr. Sweta Prajapati and Smt. Anshula Raval. I am also thankful to the authorities of Smt. Hansa Mehta Library, M.S. University of Baroda for their extensive and continuous help in various ways.

I am very much obliged to Dr. (Mrs.) Uma Deshpande, Professor and Head, Department of Sanskrit, Pali and Prakrit, M.S. University of Baroda, for her academic support and kind co-operation. I express my sincere thanks to all of my Departmental teachers especially Dr. Jaydev Jani and Dr. L.M. Joshi for their advice and encouragement throughout this research work.

I should mention here the name of Prof. Dr. Satyapal Narang from whose Kālidāsa Bibliography, I have got the information about the commentaries at first to search them easily. I, therefore, wish to express my special thanks to him as he provided to me a very solid starting point for my studies.

I wish to thank the British Library, London; Dr. N. Gangadharan (Prof. of Sanskrit (Retd.), University of Madras & Ex-Director, Ananthacharya Indological Research Institute, Bombay); Prof. Dr. P.G. Lalye, (Former Head, Dept. of Sanskrit, Osmania University, Hyderabad); Dr. Satyavrata Shastri (Dept. of Sanskrit, University of Delhi & Ex-Vice Chancellor of Shri Jagannath Sanskrit University, Puri, Orissa); Dr. (Tmt) E.R. Rama Bai (Prof. and Head, Dept. of Sanskrit, University of Madras); The Asiatic Society, Calcutta ; The Ramakrishna Mission Institute of Culture, Calcutta ; Mr. S.V. Kale (Grandson of Late M.R. Kāle) and Dr. Vindhyeshwari Prasad Mishra (Reader in Sanskrit Department, Vikram University, Ujjain, M.P. and the latest commentator of my study.) All of them have given me hearty co-operation by sending me the materials needed and by providing me information to which they had access.

I must also thank my friend and gru-bandhu Shri Hemant Bhatt who ungrudgingly gave me all the help and facility for the computer-printing work of my Thesis.

It is with particular pleasure that I express my thanks to the authorities of the Govt. of India and the Govt. of Bangladesh for awarding me the ICCR (Indian Council for Cultural Relations) scholarship under the Govt. of India through the High Commission of India, Dhaka, Bangladesh. I am sincerely thankful the ICCR for giving me the special opportunity to carry on this study in Ph.D. course by giving financial support during my study period in India.

I owe a deep sense of gratitude to all the members of the Governing body of my college, particularly to Md. Abdul Motaleb, (Founder President, Kumira Mahila Degree College, Tala, Satkhira, Bangladesh) who gave me an opportunity to take such a project and with whose inspiration I could carry on my research study; also to the kind Principal of the K.M.D.C. who facilitated my accepting this research programme and completing it; to my colleague Shri Arun Kumar Biswas for bearing and sharing my academic responsibilities during my stay in India.

There are some persons without whose moral support, friendly encouragement and continuous inspiration, I would not have been able to carry on my studies and finish the thesis. I can not express my gratitude to them enough. They are : Dr. Bijoy Krishna Banik (Research Assistant, Directorate of Archaeology, Dhaka), Prof. Bithika Banik (Dept. of Sanskrit, University of Rajshahi), Prof. Mizanur Rahman (Dept. of Bengali, Satkhira Govt. College), and Parimal Saha.

And then, I am extremely grateful to my parents, Shri Laksmipada & Smt. Shephali Saha, The successful completion of this huge task reminds me that I am what I am today due to them only. I, therefore, put my work in their feet.

Joydev Kumar Saha
