

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Firstly, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my supervisor Dr. Renu Sharma for her continuous support, patience, motivation, and immense knowledge. Her guidance helped me all the time of research and writing of this thesis. I could not have imagined having a better supervisor.

Besides my supervisor, I would like to thank Dr. Rashmin Sompura, for his insightful comments and encouragement and for those hard questions that widen my research from various perspectives. I have been extremely lucky to have a teacher who cared so much about my work and who responded to my questions and queries so promptly.

My sincere thanks also goes to Prof. Girishkumar, Dr. Rampal Shukla, Dr. Yogesh Trivedi, and Dr. Kapil Shastri, who provided me an opportunity to learn Sanskrit and Indian philosophy. Without their blessings and precious support it would not be possible to conduct this research. I sincerely thank Ms. Madhu Kelwani, Ms. Kalpana Motanpatra and Ms. Suzan Christy for giving me honest and important suggestions.

I thank my friends Ms. Henrike Seiffert, Mr. Luca Haensse and Ms. Oksana Root for the stimulating discussions, for the tireless hours we had put for statistics and for all the fun we have had in exploring Indian psychology. Also I thank my fellow Ph. D students, my teachers and colleagues in the Department of Psychology, Faculty of Education and Psychology, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda.

I would like to extend my gratitude to all the organisations and their participants for providing their time for my research.

Last but not the least, I would like to thank my family, Shubhankar and Parvez for supporting me, putting up with me and being my rock.
